MD Medical Group plans to continue opening new laboratory facilities, which provide ample opportunities for basic diagnostics. The company aims to expand its presence in densely populated areas of Moscow and the Moscow region and provide high-quality medical services to as many people as possible.

Sergey Arabadzhyan, Director for Innovative Technologies at MD Medical Group, noted:

“We are getting closer to our patients and keeping competitive prices at the MD LAB testing points. Today, MD LAB is not only a growing laboratory network, but also a new affordable format of our medical care, including at-home medical tests.
